EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Vote for Livsey and Niles.

Republicans, get out the full vote.

Republicans, the county nominees you have made merit all your votes.

If your ticket has on it the names of either Powell or Taggart put it in the fire and burn it.

It has been discovered that in some of the remote counties of Kentucky water is used as a beverage.

Have your ticket made up before you go to the polls. Then you will have nothing to do but to hand it in at the window.

To maintain an attitude of "masterly inactivity" is the ideal of statesmanship from the standpoint of the Pennsylvania state senate.

Again we urge Republicans to get out the full vote. It is unnecessary to urge Democrats to do so as they are always "full" on election day.

Sunset Cox is nursing his little boom for the speakership in Washington. In the mean time Dr. Randall, Philadelphia's great and good juryman, is confident and happy.

Under the reduced rates the Herald expects to reach a circulation of 200,000 copies in New York alone. London has several papers which circulate 250,000 copies daily, and Paris has one that runs up to 800,000.

The bodies of the one hundred and seven confederate soldiers lately exhumed at Arlington were taken on board the steamer Leary at Alexandria Monday afternoon, and sent forward with becoming honors to their final resting place in the soldiers cemetery at Raleigh, N. C.

A new cause for murder has just been discovered in New York, where one man who was laughing at a funny story was stabbed and killed by another who supposed the good humor of the other an insult to him. Such a man should be tried and sent to the scaffold in double quick time.

The N. Y. Sun says that there is something quite sublime about the way Judge Holman, of Indiana, "sits down." It is almost equal to his style of standing up. He weighs only 140 pounds—scarcely enough to make a first-class president, but if Judge Holman isn't nominated the Sun will kick.

Up to date Pattison's extra session of the legislature has cost the state $412,808, and all there is to show for it is the judicial apportionment bill passed more then two months ago. No state treasury in the Union was ever more severely bled than that of Pennsylvania by what is called a Democratic reform (!) administration. No wonder the people are disgusted.

The electric locomotive headlight has been successfully tested at Indianapolis, and will likely be adopted on some of the roads. The light has a power of 7,000 candles and casts a distinct illumination a distance of over a mile. No difficulty whatever was experienced from the jolting of the engine, the light continuing as steady when the engine was in motion as when standing still.

Our Candidates.

That excellent newspaper, the Democratic Watchman, is deeply concerned because we neglected to say more in support of the candidates of the Republican party in Centre county. We sympathize with the Watchman in this regard, and would ask—why, if it is so desirous for our candidates to be praised, does it not enter the arena and advocate their candidacy. In doing so it would be championing a better cause than the utter folly of endeavoring to find words of commendation for the Democratic county candidates.

The truth is, that such excellent men as have been nominated by the Republicans for county offices need no support that it is in the power of a newspaper to offer. Their high character, good, honest lives are known to all men; and they will be elected in November next. The people of this county are weary of ring rule and are determined to elect the Republicans, one and all.

There is Mr. Christian Dale, Sr., the most stately, honest, fearless, conscientious man who has ever been nominated by any party in Centre county for the office of Associate Judge. The Mr. Smith, or "Dr." Smith, whoever he may be, whom the Democrats have nominated for that position, cannot compare with him in either intelligence or high character. We believe that all who know the two gentlemen will vote for Mr. Dale.

There is no county office within the gift of the people which should be kept so free from corrupting influence as that of district attorney. For many years it has been manipulated by the worst element of the Democratic party in Centre county to the disgrace and humiliation of every self-respecting citizen. It is time for the people to arise in their might and lift it out of the mire. The present incumbent of that office, is W. C. Heinle, Esq., a good enough fellow in his way, but a thorough ring politician. He bends all his energies to the perpetuation of a policy which worships no deity except W. C. Heinle, the great "I am." He advocates the doctrine that Democrats hold office in Centre county by divine right. Those who admire purity in office should turn him out, and to do so the easiest way is to select a little white paper ballot bearing the legend: "For district attorney, H. H. Harshberger."

We consider it almost unnecessary to refer to Artiste Augustine—beg pardon, we mean the imperious young editor of the Centre Democrat, named Ellis Orvis, who wants to be county surveyor. He's almost too young and entirely too inexperienced for the office. He is a scientific visionary, who builds railroads and castles in the air. When he is ostensibly looking after the interests of Centre county in the wilder and more sparcely inhabited districts he will perhaps be gazing at the stars and, like the philosopher of old, he will fall into some ditch and that will be the last of haughty Ellis, and the county will be without a surveyor,—that is, if he is elected; which we do not think will be the result of the elections. Instead of voting for him the voters of Centre county have the opportunity of electing a man of culture, experience and excellence in the person of S. D. Ray. He is a graduate of State College, a school teacher of high standing, a splendid mathematician and a gentleman of genius. Vote for Ray, and a ray of sunshine will illuminate the affairs of the county. He is worthy of your votes; see that he receives them.

H. H. Harshberger, for district attorney, is the synonym of honesty. His opponent, W. C. Heinle, never exhibited much brilliancy in the office which he has filled so long, and it would be the part of wisdom to elect Harshberger, as he is a young lawyer of whom not a word of evil is spoken.

The Prospect in the State.

No conflict that ever awaited the Republican party of Pennsylvania promised victory more certainly than does the war to be waged at the polls on the 6th day of November. In the Democratic criticisms of the candidates whom the Republican party have nominated we see nothing that could cause a loyal voter to falter in his allegiance to the great party of which he is proud to be a member. At the same time, we have nothing to say against the personnel of the Democratic candidates. What should deter any voter at the polls from voting for them is the gigantic system of fraud which they represent.

Republicans may claim victory because they are not handicapped, this year, by any side issue. The Philadelphia Press points out that whatever of division exists is now in the Democratic ranks. Even last year, when the Republican forces were plainly divided—with two great wings facing each other, instead of the enemy—with nearly every shot fired in what are now friendly ranks—with consequent discouragement and demoralization—the total Republican vote for governor was 359,432 (Beaver, 315,588; Stewart, 43,844), while the highest Democratic vote (and this for Pattison) was 355,891. These figures show a Republican majority of 4521 in Pennsylvania's most divided year.

For the Republicans this is a united year. No gains are required, as in Ohio, to win, and yet gains can everywhere be made. They should be made to rid the great struggle of 1884 of its more painful doubts, and the business interests of that continued depression which must inevitably accompany such doubts. If Pennsylvania gives a good majority in November, all of the local issues which disturbed Ohio, but which failed even to shake Iowa, will be forgotten in the battle of 1884. Pennsylvania will give voice to public opinion on the national issue of protection. She is the keystone of protection, as well as of the arch, and as she speaks in November, 1883, so will the lines of battle be drawn in November, 1884. Ohio's drawn result should but encourage greater effort on the part of all the Republicans of our State. There is neither reason in nor room for discouragement. There is every incentive to effort, and whatever of difficulty may confront, should but nerve Republicans to instant, continued action.

The business interest should at once aid the efforts of all who are organized to promote success and encourage proper plans to get out the vote. Nothing else is needed. The great majority are with us. It did not change in the darkest hour of our party's history; it will not change now with the dawn in rising view. Manufacturers, of all men, should give public evidence of their appreciation of the issue at stake, and aid as only they can aid when determined to assert the rights of American labor. The more general Republican influences need but the invitation to induce a great effort. There is no longer Republican discontent; the drift is wholy toward unity, and, with united ranks, only the attendance of voters is needed. Surely, so simple a task involves no doubt as to its performance, and it will not if Ohio's result moves Pennsylvania as Maine's results in 1880 swelled the chorus for Garfield

General Beaver, who was the Republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania last year, and was defeated by the split in the party, is making speeches for the present Republican ticket in that State. He urges his hearers to forget past differences and unite heartily in support of the Republican candidates. His action makes evident more than ever the harmony which prevails among the Pennsylvania Republicans.—N. Y. Tribune.

The word "obey" has been stricken from the marriage service of the the Methodist church of Canada. The world moves in this nineteenth century, so there's hope for those young ladies of America who wish to become wives and to pay strict heed to the proprieties of the married state, and yet desire to exercise their own sweet wills irrespective of the will of the particular lords of creation with whose fate theirs may be linked. There are not lacking those of the softer sex who claim, even now, that the word "obey," as used in the marriage service, is a mere formality, and of no binding force and effect. What a vast stride forward the world has made from the days when the wife was subject to the discipline of a rod no thicker than her husband's thumb, to the present, when the lord of creation is defied by his mate, laughed at, his heart made a plaything, and the marriage contract robbed of the only word which gave him the shadow of the authority, which his forefathers exercised in the largest degree. Rev. John Jasper may be right; but whether right or wrong, something is moving, and it is probably a matter of indifference to the fair tyrants of creation whether it be the sun or the earth, so long as the circle of their power over, and their subjection to, man increase and diminish in corresponding ratio. The church may as well strike the word "obey" from its marriage service; madam doesn't regard it anyhow, unless she pleases; and in that case the obnoxious word is not necessary.—Harrisburg Telegraph

The Hon. Leon Abbett, Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, begins to find his record so burdensome that he is endeavoring to crawl out from under it. His motion in the New Jersey Assembly to strike out the name of Lincoln from a vote of thanks to the army when Richmond fell was in accord with his attitude all through the war. But somehow this particular performance is becoming oppressive, and he strives to release himself from it by arguing that he was willing to thank the soldiers, but that he didn't want to give any countenance to a "partisan Administration." He ought to have reminded himself before he urged this plea that that the resolution distinctly thanked the President as Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United States and not as a civil magistrate. Mr. Abbett must invent some more ingenious excuse for his enmity to Lincoln, manifested in this spiteful way only ten days before his assassination. When he is through with this page of his record he may try to explain how it happens that he was unwilling to take the notes of the Government for his own services and voted that the State should pay him in gold, while at the same session he voted to prevent workingmen from receiving anything better than store orders for their labor.

The Pittsburg Dispatch remarks that after the variety of English visitors, which embraces the range of good, bad and indifferent, represented by the names of Lord Coleridge, the Bishop of Rochester, Oscar Wilde, Mrs. Langtry, and Rufus Hatch's deadheads it is pleasant to learn that we are to have a visitor next spring whom the whole country will join in honoring. The announcement that John Bright will come to the United States next spring will be good news to every true American. There is no other Englishman of equal prominence who has been as true and steadfast a friend to the United States, or a more earnest and constant supporter of popular interest in his country. Our people will give him a welcome as broad as the country itself, and will show him that they value his visit more than they would the idle and curious presence of any princely tourist.

What Republican candidates want is votes, not encomiums. The Democratic candidates will rest satisfied with the latter, as they will receive very few of the former.

Dunn's directory of business failures, of the 19th of October, shows that during the week preceding that date there were 56 more business failures in this country than during the previous week. What accounts for this increase? Simply this: During the greatest business prosperity people looked forward to a Republican triumph in Ohio. Slight though the victory of Democrats was, it caused a business panic and a largely increased number of failures. What would be the result of a Democratic victory in Pennsylvania? Probably twice as many business failures. The people will prevent any such a calamity, however, by electing a Republican treasurer and auditor general in Pennsylvania.

Notwithstanding the experience of the Bradford heirs, the claimants of some other millions in England alleged to have been left by one Moser met in Chicago the other day. Perhaps the fact that a machinist in Paterson, N. J., has just fallen heir to $65,000 in England, may arouse their hopes. But they fail to make a proper application of the example. Instead of meeting in Chicago and forming plans to capture the Moser millions, they should follow the example of the Paterson man and all go to work in machine shops or at some other productive industry.

Remember Republicans, our candidate for Auditor general is Hon. Jerome B. Niles. You can explain the coincidence that his name without the final "s" would be the same as the great river of Africa, one of the most remarkable bodies of water in the world. And just as the water flows along the channel of that river in a resistless torrent so will the votes flow on Tuesday, Nov. 6, to his support. Republicans, see that each one of you poll a vote for Niles, and urge your bosom friend to do likewise.

The First Lie Nailed.

The Democrats, as usual, for lack of better material, have put in circulation the first lies of the campaign. Among the most ridiculous is the assertion that William Livsey, Republican candidate for State Treasurer, was in the Rebel Army. This is unqualifiedly false. He served gallantly in the Union Army, and is a member of Hays Post, No. 3, G. A. R., of Pittsburg. He is the man to lead Republicans to victory. Vote for him and for all the ticket.

Those who want experience and merit in office will vote for S. D. Ray rather than for Orvis for county surveyor. The father of the latter aspirant for office now draws a yearly salary of over $5,000 from the public treasury and that's enough for any one family. Let Artiste Augustine devote himself to honest labor.

If Christian Dale, Sr., is elected for associate judge, people on both hill and dale can rest assured that justice—fair and unsullied—will be meted out to them. Of a Smith, however, justice cannot be expected. Is he a physician or what? we would like to know—that he flings this title of "Dr." around so loosely?

Only two weeks remain until election. Republicans should improve that interval by urging their neighbors and friends to unite with them at the polls in the effort to keep the Republican party in Pennsylvania in power. It can and should be done.

On Saturday, the 6th, M. W. McAlarney, postmaster of Harrisburg, purchased a controlling interest in the evening Telegraph of that city, and immediately took charge, Mr. Wilson and DeB. Randolph Keim, who was the writing and managing editor, retiring.

Do not bestow too many eulogies on the Democratic party now, friend Watchman, because you will be under the necessity of writing its epitaph after November 6.

A simple and useful bolt has been invented by Mr. Arnott of the Lyceum Theatre (London), having for its object the fastening of doors of theatres and other public buildings, so that they can be opened by mere pressure against the door from the inside, and not at all from the outside, dispensing with all other fastenings, which cause so many accidents in cases of panic. One advantage is, that being once unfastened it cannot be rebolted by accident.

Poetry.

FALSE PRIDE.

Ashamed to own your labor
To earn your daily bread;
Ashamed to carry a parcel,
Lest "something" might be said,
Ashamed of humble neighbors,
Ashamed of kith and kin,
Ashamed to wear your last year's coat,
Yet not ashamed to sin!

Ashamed to save the dollar
By laying up the dime,
Yet not ashamed to borrow,
Or waste God's precious time;
Ashamed to learn of good men,
Ashamed to take advice,
Yet not ashamed to take strong drink,
And not ashamed of dice!

Ashamed to shun temptation,
Ashamed to answer "No!"
Yet not ashamed to loiter
On "corners" as you go;
Ashamed, before you venture,
To nobly count the cost,
Yet not ashamed to boast how much
At stakes you've "won" or "lost!"

Poor human nature needeth
Foundation like a rock,
And strong supports and braces
To guard against life's shock;
But of all the "helps" to aid her,
And all the "props" beside,
That keeps her dignity alive,
The weakest is false pride!

DAY BY DAY.

As, day by day, the sun uprises,
Darkness flies and light appears,
So, day by day, come new surprises,
Bringing hope and chasing fears.
The sun may hide his beaming glances
When we think he most should shine:
But neither night nor day are chances—
All things move by laws divine.

As, day by day, the feathered singers
Warbles forth his pur- delight,
So, eve by eve, faint murmurs linger
Round the sable skirts of Night.
And, day by day, their worship chorus
Bids us lift our souls on high:
But, ah! we feel they stand before us,
And to God oft seem more nigh.

O day by day! ye have revealed
Hidden light where clouds o'erhung;
O blest to-day! thou hast unsealed
Rolls of promises unsung.
All the future tells me plainly
How much nobler I can be;
And the past too shows me vainly
What I long have failed to see.

Our Story Teller.

Effie's Faith.

I.

There was considerable stir when Mr. Raby, a reputed millionaire, paid a visit to the Langmore family. He was a young, handsome, dignified man, very pleasing in his manners.

Mr. Langmore had three daughters named Edith, Rose and Alice, each beautiful in their way, and each anxious to secure Mr. Raby for a husband. With them resided Effie Fairlie, a niece of Mr. Langmore's, and the Cinderella of the family. She performed all the drudgery and was constantly kept under restraint.

Effie was a sweet, earnest, gentle girl. Her blue eyes, like dewy forget-me-nots, shone brightly, scarce shaded by the dark curled lashes which gave a tender wonder to her face—a sweet sunburnt face, with a mournful expression of resignation about the small well formed mouth; a tiny, piquant nose, a glory of gold-hair; waving hair, all lights and shades, which clustered down her back, gathered together by a velvet band of black.

This child-woman strangely attracted Mr. Raby. She never sought his presence, yet never shunned it. There was a natural ease and grace about her which astonished him.

She wandered every evening to a little ravine known as Silver Grove, in which was a wide, silent pool. Suddenly Mr. Raby discovered that the grove was also a charming locality to him. He frequently met Effie there, and became deeply in love with her almost before he was aware of it.

"Effie," he said to her one evening as they stood beside the pool, "Effie, if the fairies were to offer you a grand home, and horses and carriages, and servants, and pretty dresses and jewels, would you be pleased?"

"No, Mr. Raby, I have never felt the need of any of these things. I should not ask riches of the fairies if I could choose."

"What would you ask, Effie?"

"I should ask for love," she answered simply. "I have so longed for it, ever since I was the wee-est child, and no one has ever cared for me."

There were tears in the soft voice, a tremble of the ruby lips, but the steadfast eyes looked patient—there was no anger, no resentment in them.

"But suppose this love was offered you, Effie, by one who was very, very poor, and you had to work for that person day and night till you were weary, and your food was scant, and your clothes few, and all your thanks were his gratitude—all your payment his affection. What then, little Effie? Would you be happy, child?"

"So happy," she answered, with a nervous clasping of her workworn, small, tanned hands. "If only I could help him, if only he cared for me. I should mind nothing!" and then, with a fun-gleam crossing her eyes "Oh, Mr. Raby, are you a fairy in disguise? If so you will know how much I want to satisfy me, and if not you must think me a very foolish girl; and I have detained you when you ought to be with the Miss Langmores."

"Why, Effie?" looking at her keenly.

"Why?" she echoed, "you know why, Mr. Raby."

He broke into a quiet laugh.

"Run home, child, run home," he said. "You are a wise little thing, no doubt, but it won't save you from a scolding if you are out too late."

He watched her receding form with a gratified expression upon his handsome face.

There was nothing to be seen of her when he returned to the house. Like Cinderalla she had gone back among the pots and pans to work; but he did not forget her for all that. He was, however, studiously attentive to the other young ladies, and each one vied in doing him honor.

II.

Mr. Raby was the owner of West Grayland Towers, one of the finest places in the country.

He took Mr. and Mrs. Langmore and their three daughters with him to show them the place, leaving the little Cinderella behind.

She felt very sad when the coach and four was out of sight. They were to be gone a fortnight. She would not miss any of the family. But she would miss very much, the kind, grave eyes that used to look at her with such gentle and admiring fondness.

One day Mr. Langmore with his wife and daughter came back in haste, all unexpectedly, in a fly with two post horses, just a week after they had set out in their splendor, the admired of all beholders.

Dismay was upon the paternal face, temper visibly depicted on the mother's; and gloom and discontent in different stages on those of Rose, Edith and Alice. They took no notice of Effie beyond handing her all the things which they wanted carried in; and it was only in broken fragments that she found out the reason of this sudden return. It was not told to her, but she gathered it by bits from their remarks.

"Only to think now, that that man was nothing but an impostor after all!" cried Mrs. Langmore, sinking into a chair; "and living at such a place as Grayland Towers, too. No wonder, indeed, that we were taken in by him; and then to find out that he is actually ruined!"

"And what is more to you I'm ruined, too," growled Mr. Langmore, plunging his hands frantically into his trousers pockets. "Why, ma'am, are you aware what you have spent entertaining him?"

"Don't put it on me," cried the wife; "I never invited him, and that you know."

"No; and you never wanted to marry him to one of your daughters either, I suppose," sneered the husband.

"We wouldn't have had him," cried the girls indignantly. "The idea!"

"Sour grapes," snarled Mr. Langmore, maliciously.

"Fancy the bailiffs in possession of Grayland Towers," sighed Mrs. Langmore. "And I really did think one of you would have it."

"It's a horrid place," said Rose, "gloomy and full of ghosts; but I must say Mr. Raby has behaved very badly."

"Has he lost everything?" asked Effie, the color coming and going in her face. "Is he very poor now?"

They all looked up at her in surprise. She never, as a rule, ventured to speak till she was spoken to.

"Yes, Miss Impudence," was the reply. "He hasn't a brass farthing left, and the worst of it is, they say he has defrauded his creditors."

"I am sorry—so sorry!" said Effie, gently. "Poor Mr. Raby!" and she crept away, her eyes filled with tears.

III.

Three weeks later Effie was sitting upon the green, shady banks of the pool thinking of Mr. Raby.

Presently another face mingled with her own upon the surface of the water. She uttered a glad cry, and in another moment she was clasped in two strong arms.

"Effie! my little Effie! have you forgotten what boon you told me you would ask the fairies if you might have your choice?" Mr. Raby asked, tenderly looking down into her changing face.

"Yes! I remember," she whispered gently.

"Would you ask it still, Effie?"

"Yes, still—ever—always."

"Even though your lover were poor, Effie, very poor?"

And her lips framed "Yes."

He stooped to hear it, and her soft breath upon his cheek answered him.

"Effie, my child, my darling, you have your wish. The fairies have answered you. I love you, little Effie. Will you come to me? Will you be my little wife, and love and comfort me always?"

Across her face there spread a halo which he never forgot and without a word of promise she nestled like a tired child into the arms he had opened to receive her. He went with her back to the house and saw Mr. Langmore, who heard him scornfully, and with laughter said:

"It was one beggar asking for another, but if the girl had a mind to marry him he'd no objection; it would save him something. When would he like to take her?"

There was a lurking light of mischief in Mr. Raby's eyes, but he answered demurely.

"He must strive to prepare a little home, first, of course; about Christmas he hoped to be able to claim her."

Effie's engagement was now the constant joke; commented upon with many a taunt and jest, as they struck it like a shuttlecock from one to the other; but Effie had a glad warm joy that filled her pure young heart, and no unkindness would harm her. The arrows of malice glanced aside, and left her scatheless. The roses bloomed in her cheeks, and a new born radiance filled her eyes.

IV.

It was Christmas morn when they were married in the little church to which Effie had stolen away alone, Sunday after Sunday, whenever opportunity offered.

No one went with her to the wedding. Her lover waited by the garden gate to lead her over the slippery ground, and she walked with happy blushes by his side.

She had bid good bye to all, but none had prayed God to bless her. She had done her best to make her shabby clothes look better, but King Cophetua's bride could scarcely have been more poorly clad.

The ceremony over they went to the hotel and had a simple repast. Then he took her hands in his, looked into her eyes and asked:

"Effie do you know what faith is?"

"It is to believe in what you do not understand, is it not, dear?" she quietly answered.

"Yes, darling. And if I asked you to do something which you could not understand, and regarded as a strange and unheard of request, would you have faith enough in me to follow out my wishes without a word of question? Could you trust me entirely and blindly, Effie?"

"Yes, dear," she said, a sweet, confiding smile upon her lips.

"Then come here, my wife."

She drew nearer to him, and he drew from his pocket a folded handkerchief, with which he bandaged her eyes. He saw that her lips still smiled, and he stooped to kiss them. He led her by the hand, and she felt that she was half lifted into a carriage. She heard the noise of horses' hoofs upon the stone yard of the hotel, and then they were away upon the road.

One stop only on the way, and the trampling of horses, then the opening of a ponderous gate; another stop. She was lifted lightly to the ground, and led up some steps; over carpets soft and deep, into which her tiny feet sunk; and then again he spoke so her:

"Effie, my own darling, do you love me?"

She lifted her rosy lips to his for an answer.

"Rich or poor, in sickness or in health, you will ever be the same to me."

She threw her arms around his neck and clung to him.

"I shall love you—always."

"Come, then, fairies, wave your little wands of love and introduce our little Cinderella to her kingdom.

He turned her three times round, kissing her at each turn. The bandage fell from her eyes, and Effie saw before her such a room as she had never imagined to exist in Fairyland. Each luxury, every beautiful thing that he had been able to find, which money could buy, he had gathered together here for her.

He opened a magnificent inlaid wardrobe, and before her there were the most beautiful costumes awaiting her. She had never once spoken.

"Effie, all you see is your own; are you glad, darling?"

"And are you not poor after all?" she asked, the wonder increasing in her eyes.

"No, my Effie; I am very rich."

"And you don't want me to comfort you" she said, the tears starting to her eyes. "Then, dear, why—why did you marry me?"

"Because I love you, Effie; because you are so good and gentle and patient and forgiving; because you are the very best little woman I have ever met; and because—last, not least—no one else in the world have I ever wanted for my wife."

"Lionel," she whispered with a happy smile, "you and the fairies have been very good to poor little Cinderella."

The Chestnut Traffic.

A Hartford fruit dealer has been advertising in the Evening Times, of that city, for the past week, for 10,000 bushels of chestnuts. "What do you expect to do with them?" asked a reporter.

"I can find a ready market for every one of them in New York and Boston," was the reply.

"Do you expect to get 10,000 bushels?"

"Oh, no; if I get 1,000 bushels I shall do well. But when the country folks see they are wanted, they strip the trees and bring them in."

"What price do you pay for them?"

"They bring, now, about $4 a bushel. I would take one hundred bushels at that price, to day. By-and-by when they begin to come in, they will drop to $3, or even $2, a bushel. In scarce years, $7 a bushel for a bushel of chestnuts right in this town. This year the trees are thick with burrs, but the last frost didn't open them. Another frost will bring them in, in large quantities."

The chestnut season usually lasts six or seven weeks. About 5,000 bushels are brought in from the surrounding country to the Hartford wholesale dealers. More than 1,000 bushels of these are put into the pockets of the local multitude at five cents a half pint, from the peanut stand and retail stores. The rest are sent to Boston and New York and from there shipped to cities further west. The amount consumed in New York City alone is enormous.

The chestnuts are brought in in small quantities. A couple of boys will dispose of a peck or two, and occasionally a farmer will offer three or four bushels. When the demand is brisk tricky men have been known to mix in last year's nuts, which look very well externally, but are mouldy and unfit for use. The best Connecticut chestnuts always bring a good price in the cities. Hickery nuts there is not so much demand for, and no prices are given. Bargains made at the time of sale depend upon the quality of the goods.

A sealed proposal—The engagement kiss.

His Scheme for Peace.

A rather slim chap, with rippling canary hair, stepped into a fashionable establishment where arms are sold, and called unto the clerk:

"Have you any self-cocking seven-shooters?"

"Yes," replied the clerk; "would you like to look at th m?"

"I would."

In about two minutes the counter was covered with revolvers, and the man with canary hair examined them and said:

"Give me six."

The clerk seemed astonished, but tied up the pistols; at which moment the customer commenced to fan himself with his helmet, and remarked:

"Got any shot-guns?"

"Yes. What kind do you prefer—plain or laminated steel?"

"Doesn't make any difference. Give me about two of each kind."

The clerk thought he had struck a lunatic; but he didn't care whether he took the cash of a sane man or a lunatic. So he tied the guns up, and was about to announce the amount of the bill, when the young man inquired:

"Do you keep cannons?"

"We have some nice brass cannons that carry a twenty-pound solid ball," replied the clerk.

"Are they mounted on wheels?"

"They are."

"Then give me three."

The clerk was considerably amazed, but took the order for the cannon down on paper, and said:

"Now, is there anything else you would like to see?"

"Yes; I would like very much to see some daggers."

"We have a fine stock of daggers," replied the clerk, as he placed several specimens on the counter. "Here is one with a solid silver handle which comes a little higher than the others."

"I will take six of the silver-handled ones. Now let me look at a few swords."

"What kind do you want? We have a number of different styles."

"What kind, for instance?" asked the canary-haired youth.

"Well, we have the cavalry saber—"

"Give me two."

"And we have the cutlass."

"The kind used by pirates?" asked the long, slender youth, with a smile that betrayed his anxiety.

"Yes, the very kind."

"I will take six of them."

"Now we have some Turkish cimetars."

"I want four of them. I also want two claymores, just like the one in the window."

The clerk took down his order, and began to fancy how much his employer would think of him for selling such a big bill, when the customer said:

"I want half a dozen Springfield rifles, with bayonets on them."

"I will take your order and fill it to-morrow. Is there anything else?"

"Yes; I want some harpoons and spears."

"Those we have not in stock," said the clerk; "but we can get them and deliver them with the shot guns."

"Now I want some hand grenade and dynamite."

"We don't keep them."

"Don't keep them?" replied the customer, in surprise; "don't keep them?"

"No."

"Well, then, send all those things up to my hotel, C. O. D."

The man presented his card to the clerk, who thanked him for purchasing such a nice big bill and said:

"I hope to see you when you play in New York."

"I play in New York? I don't play."

"Beg your pardon," said the clerk, apologetically; "I thought you were the manager and star of a sensational dramatic company, playing a Far West blood-curdling piece, and that you came for properties—"

"Oh, no," laughed the man with yellow hair; "I am simply going down to Texas to start a paper. There are certain journalistic amenities down there that I desire to observe to the letter. I don't wish to be mistaken for an amateur."

His Last Chance.

As Mr. Popperman threw himself on the sofa last Monday evening, and took up the evening paper, his wife said to him: "Charles, I went to a wedding to-day."

"Did you, indeed?" said he. "Whom did you marry?"

"What an idea! I saw a couple married in church."

"Oh"

"Yes. They were married according to the latest fashion."

"The latest fashion? What is that? For the bride and groom to give presents to all the guests? What did you get?"

"No, no. I mean the latest fashion in regard to entering the church. Formerly, you know, the bride and groom both came down the same aisle. Now, when the couple leave the carriage at the entrance to the church, the bride comes down the aisle followed by her maids, but the groom goes around the corner, comes in at the side door, and meets his bride at the altar."

"What's that? Do you say the groom goes around the corner and comes in at the side door?"

"Yes, dear."

"That's a splendid idea."

"Why?"

"'Cause it gives him a good chance to get away."

A fifty cent piece with a hole in it will not pass current, which shows that the half was better than the hole.

THE FATHER OF FISH CULTURE.

Seth Green's Ideas About the Finny Tribe and some of His Varied Experiences.

Turf, Field and Farm.

"How did you ever come to devise this scheme?"

"I have been working at it ever since I was large enough to bend a pin."

The above remark was addressed to Mr. Seth Green, the veteran fish culturist, who is known to the entire world, and his reply indicates the extent of his labors.

"When I was quite young," he continued, "I would lie on the limbs of trees that reached out over the water entire afternoons watching the movements of the fish and studying their habits. In this way I discovered many characteristics which were before unknown. I saw, as every observer must see, the destructive elements that are warring against fish, and I realized that unless something were done, the life in the streams of this country would become extinct. To counteract this disastrous end became my life work, and I am happy to say that I have seen its accomplishment."

"Were you successful on the start?"

"No, indeed. Up to that time all artificial attempts to hatch and raise fish from the spawn had failed, and I was compelled to experiment in an entirely new manner. The work was a careful and tedious one, but I finally succeeded, and to-day I am able to hatch and raise fully seventy-five per cent. of all spawn."

"Enormous! Why, that is a larger percentage than either the vegetable or animal kingdoms produce in a natural condition."

"I know it, but we exercise the greatest care in the start, and guard the little fellows until they become able to care for themselves."

The foregoing conversation occurred at Caledonia, where the representative of this paper was paying a visit to the state fish hatcheries. It has been his privilege to report very many interesting sights within the past twenty-five years, but the view presented here exceeds in interest anything ever before attempted.

"How many fish are there in those ponds, Mr. Green?"

"As we have never attempted to count them it will be impossible to say. They extend way up into the millions though. We shipped over three millions out of the ponds this year and there seemed to be as many afterwards as before. We have nearly every variety of the trout family and many hybrids."

"You speak of hybrids, Mr. Green. What do you mean by that?"

"I have experimented for years in crossing the breeds of the various fish and am still working upon it. We cross the female salmon trout with the male brook trout, and thus produce a hybrid. Then we cross the hybrid with the brook trout, which gives us three-quarter brook trout and one-quarter salmon trout. This makes one of the finest fishes in the world. He has all the habits of the brook trout, lives in both streams and lakes, develops vermillion spots on his sides, rises readily to a fly, is far more vigorous and fully one-third larger than ordinary brook trout of same age. The possibilities for development in the fish world are great and we are rapidly ascertaining what they are."

As the man of news watched the countenance of Mr. Green while he was giving the above account, he could not but feel that he was in the presence of one of the few investigators who, from a rich and life-long experience, bring great benefit to the world. Let the reader imagine a strong and stalwart frame, surmounted by a head strongly resembling that of Socrates, and covered with a white silky beard and luxuriant gray hair. Seth Green, the father of fish culture, is a picture of health, and the reporter could not help remarking so.

"If you had seen me the last winter and spring, young man, you might have thought differently," said the veteran.

"How is that? One would think, to look at you, that sickness was something of which you knew nothing."

"And so it was until last winter. I went down into Florida in the fall to see what kind of fish they had in that State and study their habits and was attacked with malaria in its severest form, and when I came home I realized for the first time in my life, that I was sick. My symptoms were terrible. I had dull, aching pains in my head, limbs and around my back. My appetite was wholly gone, and I felt a lack of energy such as I had often heard described but had never experienced. Any one who has ever had a severe attack of malaria can appreciate my condition. I went to bed and remained there all the spring, and if there ever was a sick man I was the one."

"It seems hardly possible. How did you come to recover so completely?"

"My brother, who had been afflicted by a severe kidney trouble and threatened with Bright's disease was completely cured by a remedy in which I had great confidence. I therefore tried the same remedy for my malaria and I am happy to say I am a well man to-day and through the instrumentality of Warner's Safe Cure, which I believe to be one of the most valuable of medicines. Indeed, I see it is endorsed by the United States medical college of New York, and that Dr. Gunn, dean of that institution, has written a long article concerning its value."

"And are you now as well as formerly?"

"Apparently so. I keep the remedy on hand all the while though and do not hesitate to recommend it to others."

"One question more. How many ponds of fish have you here and how are they divided?"

"Well, we have 43 ponds which are divided up as follows: 22 ponds of brook trout, 2 ponds of salmon trout, 4 of McCloud river or rainbow trout, 2 ponds of German trout, 3 of California mountain trout, 2 ponds of hybrids, 4 of one-quarter salmon and three-quarters brook trout, 2 ponds of gold fish, and 1 pond of Carp. Then we have what we call the centennial pond or 'happy family,' consisting of crosses of different fish, including Kennebec salmon, Land Locked salmon, California salmon, brook trout, salmon trout and hybrids. These fish range in size from minnows to 18-pounders, and in age from one-and-one-half months to eleven years. I forgot to say, also, that we have a 'hospital' pond, which is entirely empty, which speaks pretty well for a community of many millions. Indeed the whole secret of fish culture can be summed up in four things. Impregnation,—using no water. Plenty of food. Plenty of pure water and cleanliness."

The numerous fish exhibitions which are taking place in all parts of Europe and the unusual interest which is being manifested in this subject throughout the world all owe their origin to the process above described as originated and conducted by Seth Green. It is certainly cause for congratulation to every American that this country produces so many men whose genius brings value to the world, and it is proof positive of the greatest merit that a remedy even with such high standing as Warner's Safe Cure is known to have should be so strongly endorsed and recommended by one so reputable and reliable as Seth Green.

"That's not only silly but also an impertiment question. I didn't learn a trade when I was a boy out of regard for your feelings. I wanted to give you an opportunity to say that your father was a gentleman."

"It can't be helped now," replied the boy moodily, "but I wish you had consulted me for if we had arranged for you to be the bricklayer, I could have been the gentleman myself."

All that is Known About the Railroads.

The occasion was a great meeting of persons of uncertain capital, but all eager to engage in building railroads in and about Bellefonte. Not a man was present who did not believe that he knows as much about where the railroads will commence and where they will end and how soon they will be built as any other person in Bellefonte. Consequently everybody was anxious to speak.

Our reporter was present, note book and pencil in hand.

Mr. Enthusiastic was elected president and Mr. Scribe secretary with which the organization was declared complete.

The president stated that "the object of the meeting was to encourage the erection of railroads centering at Bellefonte by invoking the aid of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Vanderbilt and Reading combination and the Collins Brothers, and he was certain that each one of these big concerns is satisfied that Centre county is the best place in the Keystone State in which to invest capital." He invited all present to tell what they knew on the subject.

Mr. Agriculturalist was "confident that the Penns Valley railroad would be built immediately if not sooner, because it had been promised for so many years past and his friends had suffered materially by the long delay in building it. It was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that if there was one road more than another which should be built at once it was the road through Penns Valley."

Mr. Oreright said that "while the people of Penns Valley should have a railroad, yet he was convinced that a recent article in the Centre Democrat would have the effect of starting operations on the Nittany Valley road first of all. It is the wealthiest part of Centre county, said the speaker, so far as its mineral deposits are concerned, and the railroad companies are now contesting for the right of way through it, and if there are any property owners who are so oblivious of their own interests as to refuse to give the right of way, why, we'll run our locomotives right through them. Nothing should obstruct the way of the iron horse. It is the advance-guard of progress, the gorgeous illumination of civilization, the—"

"Mr. Oreright, excuse me," interrupted Mr. Impulsive; "eloquence is well enough in politics, but let us give practical facts in railroad talks. What you say about the Nittany Valley railroad is strictly correct. I have seen, within the past few days, engineers surveying the route of the Nittany Valley railroad at its point of connection with the Buffalo Run railroad. If that's not conclusive evidence I fail to perceive what will satisfy this meeting."

"Well, I for one am not convinced," said Mr. Equanimity. "When work is in progress on these different routes you have mentioned I too will believe in their completion. There are two railroad movements, however, which promise more than any of those which you have alluded to. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company are now constructing a line from Ross' meadow, near Pleasant Gap, into the ore region, expecting to extend it as far as Hublersburg. The route between Bellefonte and Lemont has been carefully located, which certainly means something."

After Mr. Equanimity had taken his seat a silence ensued and there seemed to be nothing more to offer on the subject. A motion to adjourn prevailed.

—It is said that on Sunday, the 14th, as a gentleman was pensively looking at the placid waters of the planing mill pond from a favorable position on the road north of that sheet of water he saw a creature of terrible appearance emerge from it near the centre of the pond. It was about fifteen feet long by two feet in girth. He hurled several stones at it, when it advanced towards him. He ran behind a neighboring house. The serpent came only as far as the land and looked over the bank when its eye caught sight of a newspaper fanned by wind. The serpent extended a formidable looking appendage resembling a human arm and grasped the paper. The strange creature perused the article not longer than twenty seconds when it cast aside the paper and with a wail of unutterable woe disappeared. In a few minutes the gentleman advanced to look at the paper and discovered that it was a copy of the Centre Democrat and the article in question was entitled "The Nittany Valley Railroad." It is supposed that the question as to whether Artiste Augustine or his papa wrote that article is what caused the serpent to retire forever.

The Peculiar Old Mystery!

It was one of the peculiarities of the old-fashioned Doctors that they never would tell patients what they were prescribing for them. They said it would do the patients no good to know, and that it would only be gratifying a foolish curiosity. In order to keep patients from knowing, they would write the prescriptions in dog-Latin, so that most patients could not read them. All that sort of thing is now over. The patient wants to know what he takes. He is weak, and wants to be strong, or he is dyspeptic, and wants to digest well. Or he has a troublesome liver which he wants to put to rights. So he takes Brown's Iron Bitters about which there is no mystery at all. This is the best preparation of iron in the world, in combination with gentle yet efficient tonics. It gives strength. It builds up enfeebled systems. It enriches impoverished blood. It removes feminine weaknesses. It casts out debility. It is what YOU want, and your druggist has it. 2

How Watch Cases are Made.

Imitation always follows a successful article, and imitation is one of the best proofs of real honest merit; and thus it is that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case has its imitators. Buyers can always tell the genuine by the trade-mark of a crown, from which is suspended a pair of scales. Be sure BOTH crown and scales are stamped in the cap of the watch case. Jewelers are very cautious about endorsing an article unless they not only know that it is good, but that the character of the manufacturers is such that the quality of the goods will be kept fully up to standard.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., Feb. 13, 1882.
The James Boss' Gold Watch Cases go like hot cakes. Each one I sell sells another. Don't need to recommend them; they sell themselves. One of my customers has had a James Boss' Gold Watch Case in use for 20 years, and it is as good as ever. With this case I do not hesitate to give my own guarantee, especially with the new and improved cases, which seem to be everlasting. JESSE T. LITTLE, Jeweler.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Jan. 6, 1883.
This gold case, No. 6666, known as the James Boss' Gold Watch Case, came into my possession about 1856, has been in use since that time, and is still in good condition. The movement is the one which was in the case when I bought it, and its condition shows that the case has really out-worn the movement, which is played out. MARTIN A. HOWELL,

Trans-Atlantic News.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 18.—Among the villages destroyed by the earthquake in the Grecian Archipelago and Anatolia were Katapatanaya, Reis, Deke and Lida. The last named is celebrated for its baths. Slight shocks are still felt on the island of Chois. The British admiral has sent assistance to Choeme and Chois.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—One hundred and fifty Annamite convicts, who were erecting a light house on the island of Peolo Conder, mutinied, murdered a Frenchman and a native warden and seriously injured another Frenchman. Sixty of the convicts seized arms and stones and escaped in boats. The others fled to the woods and hills.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—High tides and severe gales prevail on the coast, and numerous marine casualties are reported. The Severn tunnel has again been flooded by the unusual tide. Vessels arriving in the Mersey from the sea report experiencing terrible weather on their voyage. Reports from Limerick, Ireland, state that the city is partially flooded by high water in the Shannon river.

ROME, Oct. 18.—The vatican is arranging for a convention with Prussia for improving the relation of that country and the Holy See, and for the restoration to their dioceses without the enactment of new laws, for bishops expelled from the country.

All about the Weather.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Herald, noting the depression from the Pacific, which for several days has been slowly advancing eastward, over Southern California and Arizona, says: "As this depression advances toward the Atlantic seaboard it will raise the temperatures in all the districts south of the fortieth parallel, and thus help all the autumn crops to mature, while also postponing the first frost south of the Ohio valley. Being a comparatively dry cyclone, its effect will be particularly favorably to the sugar and cotton growers of the gulf states at this critical period of their operations, but in advance of this storm northeastwardly, the navigation of the lakes will be dangerous."

Missionaries in a Palace Car.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 17.—Thirty Mormon missionaries left this city yesterday morning in a Pullman palace car, bound for the East. Apostle Cannon at the last conference announced that elders going on missions invariably traveled without purse or scrip. This palace car luxury is regarded by saint and sinner as a new departure. George Q. Cannon and Delegate Caine accompanied the missionaries. The report is current here to the effect that John Taylor, on account of his advanced age and feeble condition, intends to resign the presidency of the Mormon Church. If this report is true George Q. Cannon will be his successor. This change will strengthen the Church.

Suspicious Characters Arrested.

HALIFAX, Oct. 17.—Two suspicious strangers who gave their names as James Holmes and William Brackett were arrested here to-day. In Holmes' pockets, among other things, were found two loaded revolvers several cartridges, two dozen dynamite cartridges and a copy of the Irish World. A loaded revolver and a lot of dynamite cartridges were found in Brackett's possession. In their room at the Parker house were two valises, one containing forty and the other sixty rounds of dynamite. Their object is not known, but it is supposed that they are either dynamite fiends or burglars. It is said that both men were in this city at the time of the Fenian [illegible] last spring.

An Accident at Harvard.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—What might have been a terrible calamity occurred at the Harvard boat house at noon yesterday. Just as the eights were ready to start for the scratch races the balcony of the boat house gave way, precipitating over thirty men into the mud and water below. Eight men were injured more or less seriously, and twenty-five others are drying their clothes and bathing their brusies and sprains. The balcony was on a level with the second floor of the building, about fifteen feet above the piazza extension of the first floor, and extended the whole length of the boathouse. From the piazza three long bridges extend to the large float in the river. The tide was about half flood at the time of the accident, and the distance from the piazza to the water at the river bank was about ten feet. Very few students were on the lower piazza of the boat house. The majority of the spectators were on the balcony above. There were about seventy-five students there and some twenty-five others had climbed to the roof to get a better view of the course. All was expectancy and good cheer. The upper class men were expected to make an exciting race, and the freshmen, of whom five-eights were to row later were looked to for untold amounts of sport. The eyes of all the spectators were turned eagerly to the place of starting. Suddenly the middle post supporting the balcony gave way. The plank flooring broke in the middle, and thirty men or more were dropped into the mud and water of the Charles river.

Following are the names of the injured: C. F. Hardiwick, class of '83, of Quincy; F. S. Mead, class of '87, of Boston, J. A. White, class of '83, Williamsport, Pa.; George A. Stewart, class of '84, of South Boston; Charles S. Hamlin, class of '83, of Maine; H. O. Curtis, class of '85, of Boston; E. H. Allen, class of '87, of Cambridge; A. H. Drake, class of '87; L. P. Frost, class of '86.

The Presbyterian Synod.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 21.—On the opening of the synod yesterday the report of the committees on Presbyterian records was called for, and Rev. Dr. Swift submitted a report on the record of the Huntingdon presbytery. This record involved the case of Dr. White, who was arraigned on a charge of heresy, and, who after the presbytery unanimously voted to suspend him from the ministry, had been allowed to withdraw, and was furnished with a certified copy of the proceedings. The committee thought that the presbytery erred in showing too much leniency in allowing him to withdraw after having proved him guilty of heresy as to the atonement and other fundamental principles of the church. A motion to recommit the report was adopted.

Niles' Promise to the Colored Men.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 19.—Representative Niles, Republican candidate for Auditor General, and Senator Macfarlane addressed a Republican meeting at Steelton to-night. The hall, capable of holding about three hundred people, was well filled. Niles referred to the recent decision of the Supreme Court on the civil rights bill, stating that the colored people were naturally alarmed as to its effects. He assured them that the Republicans would stand by them as they had done in the past. The audience was largely composed of negroes, who applauded Niles vigorously.

No Liquor while on Duty.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—The Railway Conductors' Convention this afternoon elected as chief conductor C. L. Wheaton, of Elmira, N. Y.; secretary, W. P. Daniels, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; member of executive committee, John N. Robinson, of Milwaukee. A resolution was adopted "that we will use all honorable means to discountenance the use of intoxicating liquors among the members of the order while in the discharge of our train business and while transacting any duties relative to the order."

A Stone and Pistol Duel.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 19.—A special from Owenton, Ky, says: A fatal altercation took place yesterday seven miles from here. J. M. Palmer, an old man, found Benjamin Crutchlaw, aged twenty-five years, on his farm and ordered him off. Crutchlaw reluctantly obeyed. As soon as he got out of the field hot words ensued. Palmer shot at Crutchlaw at the same moment that the latter threw a stone at him. Crutchlaw fell dead, shot through the heart. Palmer's skull was fractured by the stone and he will probably die.

The Pullman Car Company's Profits.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pullman Palace Car Company was held here to-day. The old Board of Directors and officers were re-elected. The annual report showed the earnings to be $4,093,243; expenses, $3,048,931. The usual quarterly dividend of two per cent. was declared and an extra dividend of one and a half per cent. out of the manufacturing profits, both payable November 15.

A Sleep Walker Killed by a Fall.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 18.—Eulora Jones, aged 17 years, the beautiful daughter of a wealthy citizen, fell from the third story of her father's house to the hall of the first floor last night while walking in her sleep and was instantly killed.

Great Loss of Life by Earthquake.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 17.—It is reported that much damage to property and great loss of life was caused by earthquakes on the peninsula between Chesme, Asia Minor, opposite Chio and Vourla, on the southern coast of the gulf of Smyrna. All the villages of that region were destroyed. It is believed that upwards of 1,000 persons perished. Survivors of the disaster are suffering fearful privations. A complete panic prevails.

LATER.—Most of the houses collapsed at the first shock, burying their inmates. The people who escaped became panic stricken and sought the fields, where many are still huddled together in a starving condition and suffering from cold. Help for the stricken people is going forward from Smyrna. The Porte has issued a notice stating that 20,000 persons are homeless, and pleading for immediate assistance. The government commission will start as soon as possible to aid local officials. The report that 1,000 persons perished is confirmed.

New Railroad Project.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., October 19.—Several prominent gentlemen of Iowa are here in the interest of the projected railroad to run from St. Louis through Central Iowa, Southern Minnesota, thence to some point on the Northern Pacific road in Dakota. Consultation has been had with leading business men of this city looking to a plan for the survey of the route, and a further conference will be held. The project meets with favor.

Trying to Break up Moody's Meetings.

CORK, Oct. 18.—Several rough characters have assembled evenings outside of the hall in which Mr. Moody is holding revival meetings and have attempted to interfere with them. The police have prevented any disturbance and now guard the hall nightly. Mr. Moody's mission in Limerick was a success.

Western Passenger Rates.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The Pennsylvania railroad company makes a positive denial of the orders issued to meet the cut in western passenger rates made by the Delaware and Lackawana company. Furthermore it is stated that the Pennsylvania railroad company intend to stand by the present arrangement.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Fourteenth Anniversary of the Y. M. C. A.

Long before it was time for the anniversary services of the Y. M. C. A. to begin Sunday evening the commodious auditorium of the Methodist church was crowded, and standing space in the aisles was at a premium.

The interior of the church was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Within the chancel rail were collections of potted plants in elegant profusion, while on the walls extending all the way around the church were letters made of autumn leaves which formed the words, "Welcome Friends." At each gas fixture was a spray of fern.

The services were in charge of Rev. J. F. DeLong, pastor of the Reformed church. What was evidently an improvised choir of young men occupied a position at the right of the pulpit and rendered the hymns that were announced with that earnestness which is always so inspiring.

The exercises were of a kind calculated to be rather wearisome to the very large numbers who come to such gatherings only to be entertained. They consisted of reports of the several officers and committees of the Association. The President's report was read by Mr. Chas. F. Cook, and was an able production. The report of the Devotional Committee was read by its chairman, Mr. Q. A. Daniels. It showed an encouraging increase in the attendance on the religious meetings of the Association. The Reception Committee reported through its chairman, Mr. Washington Rees. All the receptions under the auspices of this committee, were, according to the report, perfectly successful. Mr. George L. Potter presented the report of the Library committee. It showed that much interest is taken by the public in the library; that in the event of the dissolution of the Association the library will revert to the town as a public library, and that it has a claim on the support of the public to a greater extent than it now receives.

Master Willie Keller read the report of the evening which perhaps attracted the most attention, because it was so thorough, well expressed and delivered in such a manly, earnest manner. It represented the work done by the Boys Branch during the past year. It showed that in many important features the Boys' Branch in Bellefonte is superior to any in the State; that it is a permanent institution, and that the members regard the weekly meetings as among the most profitable occasions in which they are permitted to participate. A report was also read by Master Morris Swartz relative to his experience as a representative of the Boys' Branch at the State Convention of Y. M. C. A. at YORK. General Secretary Wilmer Crow read his report in a manner calculated to inspire the congregation with his earnestness and deep convictions of duty. The exercises were brief and the Benediction dismissing the large congregation came before they were prepared for it. While the exercises lacked the element of entertainment, they were perhaps as well calculated to impress the hearers with what the Association is really accomplishing as any that could be devised. We congratulate the Association on the promising future which is opening up before it. The harvest is ready for the gleaming blades of all the workers whom the Association can summon to its aid.

Railroad Talk.

Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven, President of the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont Railroad, was in town last week and infused his usual amount of enthusiasm among our citizens in railroad matters.

He had with him a large package of papers which attest the progress his road has been making in securing the right of way. He has encountered little or no difficulty in securing the release over all the properties on the route, one large and wealthy land owner and one man who owns only a small farm being the only obstinate ones. For the latter there is some excuse and he should and probably will receive damages. The other is inexcusable.

These objectors, however, cannot defeat the enterprise, as a railroad can give bonds and enter with entire freedom over all or any lands, a man's dwelling house or a cemetery being the only properties which are sacred against the trespass of the iron horse. The road is to be put under contract by the first of November.

Many persons are very confident that the Nittany Valley railroad will be pushed to completion by the Vanderbilts. Because nothing is known certainly regarding the movements of these enterprising railroad builders is not considered by them evidence that the work will not be done, but rather an indication that more will be accomplished than is now considered probable. They are regarded as the most reliable railroad men in the country. What they do is done thoroughly as well as quickly. They build strong, substantial railroads upon which the best time can be made. We honestly believe that no equal number of miles of railroad among their possessions will yield them larger profit than the road through Nittany Valley in the event of its completion. Let kind fortune, immense capital and indomitable push speed the good work until Nittany Valley shall be converted into a hive of human industry.

Again, the intense indignation exhibited by farmers because of the non-completion of the Pennsvalley railroad is but faintly comprehended. It would not be safe for those who have promised to build this line and failed to do so if they should come under the jurisdiction of Centre county justice.

—The Sunday work of the construction train on the morning of the 21st resulted, as usual, in a serious accident to one of the most worthy employes. The men were at work at, what is known as the Big Fill near Snow Shoe, removing the wreck of coal and coke cars which occurred on Tuesday, the 16th. Mr. William Gares, of this place, was standing where there was imminent danger that the cars, which were being lifted by a rope and pulley attachment, would strike and perhaps kill him. He was called on to move, when he leaped down a steep embankment. In taking the jump, however, his feet caught in some bushes and vines, and he fell prostrate across a log, breaking his collar bone in two places. He was brought to his home in this place, where he is suffering acutely, though his injuries are not considered dangerous.

—It is said that Hon. B. F. Hunter, one of the representatives from this county, comes of a long-lived race. His father is still living at the age of ninety years. We are glad to learn of this fact as there is some reason to believe that the Hon. B. F. will live to see the end of the present extra session. All the representatives at Harrisburg cannot entertain this joyful expectation, but are probably doomed to receive ten dollars per day during the balance of their natural existence.

—As we passed the residence of Mr. James Sommerville on Friday evening we noticed that it was brilliantly illuminated and that a company of happy people were thronging the spacious apartments within while others occupied seats on the porch outside enjoying the balmy evening air. Hence, we conclude that the Presbyterian Mite Society, which occasioned the gathering, was a success.

Dr. Harshberger's New Residence.

Among the finest private mansions in the county will be that of Dr. S. U. Harshberger, at Port Matilda, which will soon be completed. The grounds surrounding the house will be spacious and large including four lots of ordinary size. The mansion is frame, three stories in height and is surmounted by a stately Mansard roof of the most modern design. Not the least desirable feature about the residence is a large bay window overlooking a very pretty prospect. A neat fence will enclose the handsome grounds.

Dr. Harshberger expects to move into his new home about the 15th of next month, and as Mr. W. S. Williams, of Martha, who is a speedy and excellent workman, has the contract for all the carpentering work, we doubt not that the house will be sufficiently advanced toward completion at the time mentioned to permit his occupancy of it.

—One of the particularly pleasing features of the Luther memorial services next Friday, will be the music. To render it suitably the very best musical talent in the town has been engaged. We do not know the names of all the singers, but among them will be Mrs. Stover and Misses Ohnmacht, Krape, Bradley, McGinley and Straub, and Messrs. Blanchard, Gordon, Shaffer and Musser. The memorial services will virtually be continued on Sunday, the 28th, and it is expected that there will be enough Lutheran clergymen in town on that date to supply all the pulpits in the town. In fact, the occasion promises to be one of remarkable interest.

—Walter Gerrity, a young man employed at Crider's planing mill, met with an unfortunate accident on Tuesday of last week. A pile of boards fell on him, breaking his right leg. His injuries received the proper surgical attention and we hope to hear of his speedy recovery. He is about twenty years of age.

—Deininger, of the Millheim Journal, has a new name for His Excellency Artiste Augustine. He refers to him as "the dashing young circumbendibus who does the locals of the Bellefonte Democrat."

Why they Call Him "Old Man."

"Yes, that's sadly so," said Jenkins, "my hair is turning gray and falling out before its time. Use something? I would, but most hair restorers are dangerous." "True," answered his friend, "but Parker's Hair Balsam is as harmless as it is effective. I've tried it, and know. Give the Balsam a show and the boys will soon stop calling you 'Old Man Jenkins.'" It never fails to restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Richly perfumed, an elegant dressing.

Songs Never Sung.

"How does that verse run? Something like this, isn't it?

'There are who touch the magic string,
And noisy fame is proud to win them;
Alas! for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them.'"

"Yes, that's beautiful, pathetic and true," said your representative. "The poet alludes to people who are somehow supposed, and never get their full allowance of joy and air. Which reminds me of a letter shown me the other day by HISCOX & Co., of New York, signed by Mr. E. C. Williams, of Chapman, Snyder Co., Pa., a prominent business man of that place. He writes:

"'I have suffered with asthma for over forty years, and had a terrible attack in December and January, 1882. I hardly know what prompted me to take PARKER'S TONIC. I did so, and the first day I took four doses. The effect astonished me. That night I slept as though nothing was the matter with me, and have ever since. I have had colds since, but no asthma. My breathing is now as perfect as if I had never known that disease. If you know of any one who has asthma tell him in my name that PARKER'S TONIC will cure it—even after forty years.' There was a man who escaped the fate of those whom the poet laments."

This preparation, which has heretofore been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. Inasmuch as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, and unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

Night Schools.

We publish the following law concerning night schools for the benefit of those interested. From it we conclude that parents in Bellefonte and throughout the county can compel the opening of a night school in each school district, provided the requisite number of pupils who are unable to attend during the day desire a night school. The law is as follows:

"The law provides that it shall be the duty of the board of school directors upon the application of the parents of twenty or more pupils to open a free evening school for their tuition in orthography, reading, writing, etc., and to keep open such schools for a term of not less than four months, of twenty days each, the day to consist of an evening session of at least two hours; provided that when the average daily attendance of any one month shall fall below fifteen, the school may be closed at the discretion of the board. Section 2 provides that two or more contiguous districts may unite in maintaining such a school, if they see fit, each to pay its pro rata of expense. The qualifications of teachers for such schools shall be the same as required for day school teachers. The act also provides that the school directors or school controllers of any school district may, where necessary, establish an evening high school, and that the board of school directors or school controllers of two or more contiguous school districts may unite for the establishment and support of an evening high school, the curriculum of which shall be drawn up and arranged by the several school boards in joint session, met and assembled, according to their best judgment and the necessities of their respective districts. No pupil shall be admitted to these evening schools who is unemployed during the day, or in actual attendance upon said school during the day, public or private. When the average daily attendance upon said school for one month exceeds fifty pupils, an additional teacher may be engaged and retained until the average attendance falls to or below forty."

—The Conference News has the following to record in reference to the M. E. churches of this county: "The parsonage at Snow Shoe has been repaired and neatly painted. Now let the people there give their church some paint. Brother Noble is doing well. On Port Matilda charge Bro. G. W. Baker is working with purpose. The church has been repaired, and the whole charge has not been in as good condition for years. A good revival now, and the year's work will be complete. At Rock in the Pleasant Gap charge, the church was dedicated Oct. 21st.

—There is some talk of a reduction of about one-half in telephone rates. That there is "some talk" is literally true, but it makes all the difference in the world when we know that the talk is confined to subscribers, and that the managers don't talk that way at all. Many business men think that a telephone connection with their residences would enhance the value of that instrument two-fold to them, and if the rates were reduced one-half that connection would quickly be established.

—There are one or two places on Spring street near the intersection of the Lewistown turnpike that demand the instantaneous attention of the street commissioners. Great holes on the street collect all refuse water, which stands and sometimes becomes offensive. Then, Mr. Commissioner, bestow your attention upon it and dump a couple of loads of small stones in the aforesaid holes.

—The contracting parties in a wedding in Altoona on Wednesday afternoon were Mr. William Murray, Jr., a young and prosperous merchant, and Miss Carrie Elizabeth Dern, second daughter of Mr. H. C. Dern, senior member of the firm of Dern & Pitcairn, publishers of the Tribune. One hundred and fifty guests were present and the gifts were unusually choice and valuable.

—The prevailing sentiment seems to be that the people are not yet prepared for the advent of winter and about a month of pleasant weather is desired. There's the bridge to complete which will require three weeks at least; then there are the preparations for steam heating which will consume a month or more.

—The Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. is already talking of a Christmas dinner. What is to be done with Thanksgiving day?—L. H. Journal. Haven't you heard about it? Thanksgiving day will be postponed in Pennsylvania this year. There's too much mockery in the celebration of such a day when the legislature is in session.

—The barn of John Saylor, near Mt. Union, Huntingdon county, was totally destroyed by fire on Tuesday, the 16th. It contained all of this season's crop. The stock and a portion of his farming implements were saved.

—The Central Pennsylvania Lutheran synod will hold a Luther memorial service in the church of that denomination at Lewistown on the 21st of November.

V. S. C. "L."

The shades of night were falling fast,
As through High street a youth did pass,
A youth who wore for little price,
A nobby suit so neat and nice.
V. S. C., "L."

His brow was bright, his answer pert,
A hotel clerk's diamond flashed from his shirt
And like an E flat cornet rung
The accents of a well known tongue—
V. S. C., "L."

"O, stay," the maiden said, "and press
A handsome shawl or pretty dress
Upon me, before you leave this part."
The youth he answered with a start—
V. S. C., "L."

"Try no other store," the old man said,
"High prices will fall upon your head;
No better goods with prices low
Can be found wherever you go—
V. S. C., "L."

A more varied and abundant stock
In Bellefonte there ne'er was brought;
In general merchandise the fullest line,
For V. S. C., "L," are always on time.
V. S. C., "L."

Groceries, always fresh and pure,
No adulterated goods are there;
Clothing of a substantial kind
Cheaper or better you'll never find.
V. S. C., "L."

"Am well aware," the youth did say,
"For bargains and to make it pay;
That in Bellefonte there is one store
Where prices are the same for rich and poor."
V. S. C., "L."

No old goods, but fresh and bright,
They keep open until 9 at night.
Call often, you will be well repaid,
At 51 and 53, Bush's Arcade.

Suicide in His Wedding Suit.

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio, Oct. 16.—A startling sensation was created last night by the deliberate suicide of Fowler Berry, senior partner in the dry goods firm of S. F. Berry & Co. He dressed himself in the afternoon in his wedding suit preparatory to starting at night for Cincinnati, where arrangements were made for his marriage to an estimable young lady of that city on Wednesday. About 6 o'clock he walked into his store, and after all were gone to supper bolted the front door, went to the carpet room up stairs, and, laying his head upon a small roll of carpet, drew a 32-calibre revolver, and, placing it immediately behind his right ear, sent a ball through his head. When his brother Foster returned from supper he was astonished at finding the door fastened inside. Upon the arrival of one of the clerks a window glass was broken in the rear part of the store, and, going up stairs, the terrible discovery was made. It is believed death was instantaneous, as he still held the instrument of death in his hand. The ball passed clear through his head and lodged in the carpet underneath. A note addressed to his brother was found at the head of the stairs, which stated that he was washed, dressed, shaved and all ready to be placed in the coffin. He had even taken precautions to button his overcoat close around his throat, and tied a handkerchief around his head to prevent the blood from soiling his clothing. When the news was carried to the home of his parents, who were still sitting at tea, the scene was heartrending. The cause of his rash act is unknown.

A Century Old and Poor.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—A colored expressman left an old woman at the ninth police district station house last night. The woman was evidently very old, and after a short rest gave her name as Leonora Barton. In substance her story was as follows: "I was born in the spring of 1784, and I am, therefore, really one hundred years of age. Several years ago I was given $5,000 by my son, who is now dead, and I deposited the money with Archbishop Wood, and in consideration I was to be given a home at St. Joseph's Hospital for the remainder of my life. Yesterday I left the institution to go to a friend's house near Fourth and Brown streets, but was unable to find the place, although the expressman assisted me in the search. I then returned to the hospital and the persons in charge there refused me admission, I though I made several applications for permission to return. I resolved to seek another place to rest, and here I am without friends, but I have a little money."

Panic in a Synagogue.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—During services in the Jewish synagogue at Ziwonko, in the government of Podolia, on Saturday, a false alarm of fire was raised in the women's gallery, which caused a panic. The people rushed for the door, where there was a terrible crush, forty women being killed and thirty others injured.

IN A SCHOOL ROOM.

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 15.—There was an alarm of fire in the Elmot school during this morning's session. Six hundred children rushed headlong down the stairs in a panic. Many were knocked down and trampled on. One girl had her collar bone broken, another had her eye badly cut and the third was knocked insensible and received severe internal injuries. Many others were bruised. The fire caught in the waste paper room, near the furnace, but it was easily subdued.

Occurrences in the Old World.

DURBAN, Oct. 16.—The remnant of King Cetewayo's party, having assembled with the intention of rescuing Cetewayo from the Inkankla bush, where he had hiding, Chief Usibepu, whose forces have been watching the borders of the reserve, near Babanango, surprised and slaughtered one-half of their number.

ROME, Oct. 16.—The Papal Nuncio to France received instructions to observe strict neutrality in his relations with political parties in that country.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Prime Minister Ferry, in a speech at Havre, foreshadowed the withdrawal of the present embargo upon the importation of American bacon.

PESTH, Oct. 16.—There was a sanguinary affair at Miava, Upper Hungary, between the Slavs and Magyars. The troops were compelled to fire upon the rioters. Order was restored with much difficulty.

Six Hundred Switchmen Strike

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—Switchmen on all the railroads centering in St. Louis and East St. Louis entered on a general strike for shorter hours and higher wages at noon to-day. They demand ten hours as a day's work, extra pay for Sunday, and thirty cents per hour for all time over ten hours, beside $65 per month for twenty-six working days. The strikers number about six hundred men in St. Louis and East St. Louis. The strike will probably cause a blockade of freight in East St Louis

A Dying Man Running away with an Engine.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 15.—As an extra freight train was going west yesterday morning the drawhead of the car next to the engine was pulled out of place near Derry Station. The engine was stopped, and the fireman, James Maloney, and a switchman, John Bley, went to work to repair the injury. Bley and Maloney were underneath the front platform of the car when the engineer of the pusher at the end of the train, not knowing of the accident, started his engine. Bley was caught under the forward truck and crushed to death. Malony was caught by the platform and crushed against the tender of the engine. His left arm was broken in two places, his shoulder was crushed, and his skull was laid bare. He was carried to the engine and laid upon the floor. He suddenly jumped up and in a fit of delirium pulled the valve wide open. He had become raving mad from intense suffering. The engine started with frightful speed on a down grade. As the engine neared Latrobe, six miles from the scene of the accident, it was going with terrible velocity. Reaching the end of the grade the engine slackened its speed and finally came to a stop. Maloney was found in a dying condition on the floor.

Twenty Thousand Roses for a Ball Room.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—The managers of the farewell ball to the Princess Louise, at Montreal on Monday evening, the 15th instant, have contracted with Mr. Thomas F. Galvine, our well-known florist, to do the floral work, and it is, in all probability, the largest floral order that has ever been given to a single house in this country. The various designs that are to be made will require a special car to transport them to Montreal. Mr. Galvine estimates that he will use at least 20,000 roses —Jacqueminots, Souvenirs, Marshal Neils, Baroness Rothschilds, Bon Silenes and other varieties; 20,000 carnations, of different colors: 1,000 spikes of tuberoses, 500 bunches of violets, 1,000 sprays of heliotrope, 2,000 strings of smilax, 2,000 yards of English laurel and other flowers and foliage in proportion. Eight florists will be engaged in decorating the banquet and ball rooms and it is confidently anticipated that the display of flowers will be the finest ever seen on this continent.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, October 16—In the senate the action of Friday last in reconsidering the senate's action of apportionment matters was reconsidered, and the house resolution asking for conference committees was rejected. Among the nominations rejected in executive session was that of Furman Shephard to be one of the inspectors of the eastern penitentiary. He received 22 votes, all democrats but one.

In the house, after a long speech from Mr. Landis, of Lancaster, in opposition to the democratic apportionments, the resolution of Mr. Ammerman, asking the senate to appoint conference committees, was adopted.

Dr. Knox Accepts the Lafayette Presidency.

EASTON, Oct. 16.—Rev. James H. Mason Knox, who on the 5th of this month was tendered the presidency of Lafayette College at a special meeting of the trustees, has written his letter of acceptance and it was to-day made public at the college. Dr. Cattell's twentieth year as president expires one week from to-day, and then it is that he abandons the work to seek recreation and improved health. He will sail shortly for Europe with his family.

A Very Poor Shot.

SCRANTON, Oct. 17.—Sebastian Bruno, a laborer, tried to rob and kill John Fox, paymaster of the Erie and Wyoming railroad, near Greensville to-day. Knowing that Fox had a large sum in his possession, Bruno awaited him in a lonely part of the road, and when he appeared fired six shots at him, none taking effect. Bruno then escaped to the woods, and scouring parties have as yet failed to capture him.

Two Spans of a Bridge Falls.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 15.—On Sunday two spans of the bridge on the Central railroad near Agnas Calients fell, carrying with them a construction train of eighteen cars and two engines. Engineer Dilenry and Hopkins and three Mexicans were killed. The train was completely wrecked. The delay to construction work will be slight.

Killed on the Rail.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., October 16.—Two freight trains on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad collided last night near Cleveland. Engineer John Baily, Fireman William Clamphett and Brakeman Lee Gebar were killed. James Turney, engineer, Frank Armand, colored brakeman, and a tramp were injured. None seriously.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

A Practical Illustration of its Power.

A Mother's Love! What a potent thing it is! It will melt the heart of the most hardened criminal when no other influence would be effectual. No one but a mother knows its full meaning, but every one can appreciate it if they will. It is known, though, that it means sleepless nights, care, inconvenience, and, if necessary, want, hardship and death. But the subject has been too eloquently treated by the sweetest poets and the ablest writers to furnish an essay for these columns. Too many practical illustrations occur in every-day life for it to be dwelt upon, so that it is unnecessary to speak of the subject further in order to make the reader understand the full meaning of what is to follow.

Mrs. Henry Schaulen, of Ashland, Ky., writes that her daughter has been cured of deafness which resulted from chronic catarrh. She tells how she had lost all hope of her daughter (her idol) being cured, and how overjoyed she is at the result. After trying many remedies she says Peruna brought a cure and that the daughter's hearing is restored. She concludes by speaking in the most flattering terms of Peruna, and then describes in the most lovely manner the happiness it has brought her, and reviews the distress she experienced while her daughter was afflicted.

Young George Vanderbilt, fourth son of the millionaire, wants to be a newspaper reporter. There it crops out again—the natural, educated and hereditary greed for gold; the insatiable thirst for wealth, the passion for amassing millions by the easiest and quickest methods, and reaching a fabulous competence by the shortest ways. It's a family trait.

Can't be Cured.

Who says so? "The best physicians have been consulted and they all agree that the case is beyond the reach of medicine." Have you tried the new Vitalizing treatment, which acts directly upon the great nerve centres, and gives to all the vital organs a new life-force and a higher activity? "No, never heard of it. What is it called?" Compound Oxygen. Oh! yes, I have seen it advertised, but supposed it to be one of the medical humbugs of the day." If all that we have read about the cures it is making is true, it is the most wonderful therapeutic agent ever discovered. "Where can it be obtained?" Only of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard st., Philadelphia. Now, take our advice and write to them, giving a statement of your condition. You will get a prompt answer, and it will cost you nothing, as they make no charge for consultations. If, like your physicians, they see no hope in your case, they will honestly tell you so. But if they have treated similar cases successfully, they will, in making a favorable report, send such evidence of their professional integrity and skill, and such reports of cases which they have treated, as can hardly fail to give you confidence both in them and their new and wonderful Treatment. All this, as we have said, will cost you nothing.

A Johnsville young man concluded to sprinkle red pepper on the floor of a dance hall, "just for a joke." The joke was carried out—and so was the young man. The latter, however, was not carried out so quietly as the former.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning? The signal, perhaps, of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. For sale by John Harris.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. 15-37-1yeow

The Reflections Caused by the Visit of a Stranger.

James R. Harris, Esq., one of the prominent wholesale merchants of Philadelphia, paid our town a brief visit on Monday, the 15th. As he hails from the City of Brotherly Love, we are inclined to wonder whether that has anything to do with his visit.

We shall be glad to welcome him back, and whether his visit be business or pleasure, or both, it is all the same to us.

As he is said to be quite wealthy, a little cessation from the rush and gush of city life, and the enjoyment of our balmy air and forest views could certainly be a pleasure and perhaps a profit.

This leads us to remember that Bellefonte has many advantages, not only in commerce, but in the great wealth of the coal and iron ore fields lying on every hand. It only needs the investment of a little more capital to make our town one of the most active business centres of the State.

In a short time, we will not only be illuminated with electric light, but our homes and places of business will be heated with steam. So that by day we will enjoy all the pleasures of metropolitan life and at night the streets will be brilliant with the dazzling light falling upon us from five hundred electric signal stations, while all around our town the light from burning furnaces conveys the intelligence of active industry and prosperity.

There is no place in the State which now affords so many inducements for new business, or for a larger and more extensive prosecution of the industries already began. We have not only the prettiest spring in the State, but also the purest water in the world. The iron and ore fields are inexhaustible and the coal fields are but partially developed. Our farms are of the best limestone soil, yielding a handsome profit. Our schools are graded and taught by the best teachers in the land. Our Academy is prosperous and has an excellent principal, while our State College is just beginning to enter, we trust, upon an era of high prosperity.

Everything indicates an active spirit of enterprise among our people.

We have not space to allude to many other branches of business, which should require a column or more. Such, for instance, are our banks, conducted on the safest business principles; our Steel Works, managed and operated by our enterprising friend, Mr. James Henderson, of New York; the Glass Works, now in full, successful operation under the prudent and careful control of Mr. Munson; the Car Works, which only need a leading spirit to conduct its affairs according to the American idea of push; our planing mills and lumber yards, which are conducted by such genial and whole-souled men as John Ardell, Jr., and F. W. Crider, who know how to make profit out of our immense timber lands, skirting the whole northern section of the county; the Nail Works, built up in a year, under the management and superintendence of Messrs. Auchenbach and Emery, and now running day and night with more orders than can be filled, having a capital of at least one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

But the list is not yet complete. There are the iron works of Messrs. Valentine, McCoy & Linn and Curtin's, which have continued a generation in blast, out of which many thousand dollars have been realized, and whose valuable ore fields have as yet been scarcely opened; the extensive lime kilns of Messrs. Alexander & Brother and Morris, who have the reputation of making the best lime in the State, and whose supply of material, at much increased rates, can never be exhausted.

These branches of business and many others which we could mention, can be doubled 4-fold, and the capacity for increase would not then be taxed, or even reached. Add to all this a town of enterprising people, with a society which prefers culture and education to adornment or boastful pride, and you have a brief but very imperfect idea of the healthiest and one of the happiest of the interior towns of the State.

—A freight wreck occurred on Tuesday, the 16th, on the Snow Shoe branch at the Big Fill. The train consisted of 32 cars. Owing to the breaking of a wheel, one of them became detached from the others and jumped from the track. Andrew Lucas, a brakeman, was on the central car and when he saw that the cars were going over he leaped to the other side of the track. It is about one hundred feet down into the fill and as he scrambled along one side of the fill while the nine coal and coke cars were clattering down the other he expected every instant to be buried beneath the debris. But he escaped unhurt. The cars were, of course, a total wreck.

The Disagreeable Aspect of the Austrian Capital.

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, Oct. 1, 1883.

In this letter we will write about some of the unpleasant things we see in the old world, and as we have been in Vienna much longer than any other portion of the continent we will refer to Vienna more especially. First and foremost is the desecration of the Sabbath day. The shops are all open, new buildings are being erected, the laborers are at work on the streets, and the carts and heavy wagons are hauling brick, stone and lumber. The best concerts are given on the Sabbath day. The opera and theatre are always open. All the exhibitions are open. Weddings and parties are quite the thing; in fact, the Sabbath is not at all different from week days. There is but one English church in Vienna. We attended service there the first Sabbath we were here and there were about thirty persons present. We attend regularly the Scotch church, the pastor of which is a converted Jew. The usual attendance at the Scotch church is about twenty, the Lutherans and Reformed have each a small church, the Baptists and Methodists have each a small society, but have no church, the protestant churches are not allowed to have Sabbath schools. A short time since, the Scotch church quietly started a Sabbath school, and it at once became flourishing, but the singing of Gospel Hymns and reading the open Bible by the children was a great offense—the police stepped in and the Sabbath school came to a sudden end. The open Bible and pure and undefiled religion are at a very low discount. The Y. M. C. A. is treated with contempt, the people are denied the open Bible, but the vilest of immoralities is licensed and legalized and made respectable. In the Algemeine Kraukenhaus, or general hospital, are born yearly over ten thousand children, nine-tenths of whom are illegitimate.

The poor women lead miserable and unhappy lives. They carry the bricks and mortar for the erecting and repairing of buildings; they also do the excavating for buildings as well as for the sewers; they saw and split wood—in fact, do the most menial work. They receive for this kind of work thirty kreutzers per day, which is less than fifteen cents. The men receive forty kreutzers per day, which is about eighteen cents. Not much wonder these poor people want to come to America. The laboring classes of America, and all others, ought to get down on their knees every day and thank God for America. I would be ashamed to be the Emperor of any country that would degrade the poor women as they are degraded here.

Another great evil is the continual presence of an army of soldiers. Their disciplined tread is seen and heard all hours of the day, and invariably accompanied with the finest of military bands. This great army and fine bands are a great burden to the people, the people must pay the expense. Physically speaking, the army is composed of the very best young men of the land. They are compelled to enter the service and receive as pay ten kreutzers per day, or about five cents. By means of the army the country is ruled with a rod of iron. No American, or no one from any other country can come here without at once making known to the police who you are and what your business is. There is no liberty here as in America. As long as you attend strictly to your own business and keep quiet when any wrong is perpetrated upon you, or your children, or your neighbor, you are all right. Since we came here a certain newspaper dared to refer to wrongs of the poor people, and from that day to this there has been no issue of that paper. The next evening a few men assembled publicly to remonstrate against this high-handed method of suppressing a newspaper, and in a moment an army of ten thousand soldiers were upon them, and scattered them wounded and bleeding, and we have not heard of them remonstrating since.

Killed on the Rail.

A horrible accident occurred on Tuesday morning, the 16th instant, about seven o'clock on the railroad near Snow Shoe Intersection. John Cox, son of A. G. Cox, of this place, is a brakeman on the construction train. One story is that he was uncoupling the derrick car and another is that he was trying to jump from the platform car to the derrick car, when his foot slipped and he fell across the rails, the wheels passing over his lower limbs and almost severing them from the body. He was brought to his home in this place, where his injuries were attended to by Drs. Harris and Dobbins. He died about 11 o'clock. He was about 18 years of age.

A New Industry.

We have one more promising addition to make to our list of enterprises in Bellefonte—one of which we had not heard until recently, but which will be of considerable importance and promises to be successful, both because of its nature and because of the enterprising character of the gentleman who is its financial head.

The ladies will be especially delighted to learn that it is a hair pin factory.

About two weeks ago a gentleman named Wickersham of Worcester, Mass., paid a visit to Bellefonte and through him our well-known citizen D. G. Bush, Esq., learned that he had invented a hair pin possessing qualities superior to all others. The invention was patented several years ago, but because the patentee was then engaged on another invention which he considered of more importance he did not give his hairpin much prominence.

The hairpin invented by Mr. Wickersham has been shown to several merchants who pronounce it excellent. Specimens of them have been given to the ladies to fasten their hair with and they are delighted.

It is said that one 1-horse power machine will turn out hair pins rapidly enough to keep fifty girls constantly employed packing them. Mr. Bush is now in correspondence with Mr. C.P. Culver, of Williamsport, who has some practical knowledge of the invention and he expects to be able to induce that gentlemen to assist him in the enterprise.

The factory will be operated in Mr. Bush's new addition to the Arcade building, on the 2d floor. If successful—and almost everything Mr. Bush has anything to do with does meet with success—it will employ a large number of girls at pleasant, profitable work, and help along the business boom in Bellefonte to a considerable degree.

A Meeting of Borough Council.

Among the most important items of business brought before the Council on Monday evening of last week was the reading of a statement showing the borough expenses for the six months from April 1 to September 30. They are as follows:

WATER COMMITTEE.

Engineer	$318.50
Coal and wood	311.43
Supplies and repairs	147.98
Labor	5.63
Repairs to old & new boilers	250.89	$1,034.43

Although the Water Committee shows an increased expenditure, a large part of it was extraordinary expense. The work of the committee has been conducted more economically than in previous years.

—Adam Hoy, Esq., one of the prominent members of the Centre county bar, gave an elegant dinner at his residence on Tuesday afternoon to the committees from Centre and Huntingdon counties appointed to revise the rules governing the court and legal procedure in the two counties, so that there may be no conflict when the legal giants meet to exact justice and equity. The committee from Huntingdon county consisted of Messrs. Petriken, Brown and Dorris, while the Centre county committee was composed of Furst, Keller and Hoy. A few other kindred spirits representing the bar of this county were also present. The hour for the dinner was 3 o'clock p. m. and an hour and a half was consumed in discussing the tempting viands, which were of the most elegant description.

Digging the Trenches.

Last Thursday we met that pleasant individual, Mr. Perry C. Steele, Sr., and asked him if the rumor was true that he has the contract for digging the trenches for the steam heating pipes.

"Yes," he replied.

"How many feet of trenches will there be?" we interrogated.

"Certainly 6,000 feet," he replied, "although there is every reason to believe that the number of feet will be still greater."

"How soon do you expect to finish the trenches, Mr. Steele?"

"The 6,000 feet will be completed in one month," he said; "Some people think I can't do it in that time, but I can."

Mr. Steele, it will be remembered, was the contractor for the planing mill dam and that speaks for itself.

—Coal is beginning to sear up the chimney rapidly.

PRESENT POWER.

To-Morrow a Long Way Off When Help is Wanted To-Day.

Comfort is never in a hurry. Pain and distress are in hot haste. It is to the "friend in need"—the friend who does something now—that the old adage pays the compliment of being a "Friend indeed." That they do not keep the sufferer in suspense is the salient excellence of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. The plasters of other days—whether porous or otherwise—said—"Wait until to-morrow; we can promise nothing on the spur of the moment." But pain unrelieved, like hope deferred, maketh the heart sick. Benson's Plasters act on application. They permeate, soothe, warm and heal, containing, as they do, chemical and medicinal agents of the highest efficiency. Their motto is now, and the genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of each plaster. Price 25 cents.

Than in any other town we know;
They mince and flirt for thirty years,
But never have a beau.

—Houtzdale is to have a S. of V. camp.

—The construction train created some commotion about the depot in this place on Sunday.

—We were just in the act of resurrecting our summer suit on Saturday afternoon when the change came.

—Coons are quite plentiful in the neighborhood of Unionville. Some hunters found five in one hole a few days ago.

—Rebersburg Lutherans will also hold Luther memorial services, having appointed Sunday, November 11, as the day for them.

—Mr. D. G. Bush has completed the pavement in front of Dr. Miles Kirk's drug store in the Arcade. This is a very welcome improvement.

—Mr. Isaac Thomas, a Tioga county farmer, threshed out 110 bushels of buckwheat which was gathered from less than three acres of land.

—The Chatauqua Society has ten members in Tyrone. They are pursuing the full course of study. How many members has Bellefente?

—The public school grounds and other uncultivated fields in the suburbs of the town are scenes of lively base ball games during the warm afternoons.

—We hear that the colored band of this place practices regularly and is improving rapidly. Hurry up, boys, and let the public hear some of your music.

—The Reformed church property at Centre Hall has been made more attractive in appearance by a handsome fence around the grounds. The cemetery lot has been enlarged.

—Mr. Wm. T. Farner, formerly of Centre Hall, recently took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Ada Drown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Drown, of Ellicottville, N. Y.

—A hunting party composed of Ed. Powers, Mr. Rich, of Unionville, and a gentleman from Philadelphia returned on Friday after royal sport. Eleven squirrels are exhibited by them as trophies of the hunt. Besides they enjoyed themselves thoroughly

—Col. Isaiah Beck, a prominent and successful farmer of Half Moon township, threshed 636 bushels of fine, heavy wheat weighing 55 pounds to the bushel from wheat grown on 22 acres of land, or a fraction less than 29 bushels to the acre. Hurrah for the Colonel!

—Fortney, Spangler, and other political Ciceros talked to the people of Centre Hall on Saturday evening, but failed to convince the audience of four or five persons present that they can stem the current of the Niles or imperil the bark that rides on a Livsey (live sea).

—Mr. John A. Woodward, of Howard, has accepted a position as assistant editor of the Farm Journal, which has a larger circulation than any other agricultural paper in the United States. He is a facile and intelligent writer on all subjects relating to operations on the farm.

—Mr. Charles Nolan, formerly of this place and now of Newburgh, N. Y., was so kind as to send us a copy of the Daily Register of that city, containing a long and full description of the Peace Centennial celebration in that city on Thursday, the 18th of October, when there were 150,000 strangers thronging its beautiful thoroughfares.

—A lady was seriously offended the other day by a man whom she requested to weigh her. As she stepped on the scales he remarked that she would weigh about 190 pounds and the result proved that those were the exact figures. "But how did you know it?" she asked. "I weighed hogs in Cincinnati for five successive years," innocently replied the man.

Centre County Schools and Colleges.

Prof. Reeves, one of the instructors of the Pensylvania State College, occupied a seat in our sanctum for a very brief time on Friday afternoon, during which a few words of information concerning that institution fell from his lips.

Students are arriving daily and the work of education goes on uninterruptedly. The number of students now in the College is greater than before for many years. The new President, Dr. Atherton, is universally respected.

The building is delightfully located and its distance from any railroad station is in some respects an advantage. It aids the pupils to fix their attention upon their studies, there being no excitement to interrupt them. But what the College needs more than anything else perhaps is closer proximity to a railroad station and no persons in the county feel more interested in the completion of proposed railroads than the College faculty. Among the disadvantages to them is the delay they experience in receiving their mail matter. Daily papers are two days old and other things in proportion. This difficulty will be remedied when the railroads are completed.

Please do not suppose that Prof. Reeves told us all of the above. We concluded from what he said that it was about the correct condition of affairs. We should be pleased to receive information from State College frequently.

By a fortuitous circumstance we also saw one of the gentlemanly teachers in the advanced grades of our public schools a few minutes after. He also conveyed the information that the attendance of pupils—especially young ones—is larger than ever before, several of the rooms being crowded.

He believes that the standard of the schools is advancing slowly but none the less surely. He notices it in the ease with which the pupils prepare their lessons from year to year. The only branch added to those heretofore taught is bookkeeping.

"The House is on Fire!"

On Thursday morning our two townsmen, J. C. Harper and J. G. Love, Esqs., went hunting for squirrels; but before starting on the expedition it was necessary that the former should be equipped with a gun, which he had previously made arrangements to borrow from John Wagner, S. D. Gray, Esq., at that time having possession of it.

Accordingly, at about 5 o'clock a. m., he went to the Bush House and walked boldly to the room occupied, as he supposed, by Mr. Gray. He knocked violently on the door, accompanying the action with the exclamation in stentorian tones, "Wake up!" "What's the matter?" sleepily responded a voice within. "Wake up!" came the words of warning louder than before; "the house is on fire!" Then the sound of two pairs of feet on the floor was heard and in quick time the door was opened slightly. But Harper began to feel somewhat confused. What means the sound of so many feet, he mused, surely Gray is not alone. But when he saw two figures outlined against the dark background he became conscious that neither of them was Gray, but that they were both white. He uttered many "Beg pardons!" and was deeply and truly sorry when a female voice plaintively inquired: "Is the house really on fire?" He hastily reassured them to the contrary.

When his embarrassment had completely disappeared he sought and found Gray's room, and procured the gun. Gray had been awakened by the noise and understood the joke, and has been laughing about it ever since.

The sequel of the story is that Harper and Love entered the 5:40 train and soon reached the hunting ground where they had a good day's sport. They say they captured more squirrels than ever before in the same time.

—The Watchman says it don't believe that there were 10,000 people at the afternoon exhibition of the circus and then admits that the reporter of that paper only arrives at a calculation of the number there by a cursory glance at the sea of heads under the canvas. Well, we were not there at all; don't care much about circuses, but we got our estimate of the number of people present from the ticket sellers of the show, and they are in a somewhat better situation for arriving at a correct estimate than one who trusts to uncertain vision. They said that there were 10,000 people present and were surprised at the number. On the other hand, they were equally disappointed at the small audience in the evening. It is somewhat presumptuous in the Watchman to doubt our figures, as we always go to headquarters for information.

A Wedding at Coleville.

On Thursday evening a wedding occurred at Coleville which attracted together a party of about forty people and in which very many others who knew of the event were interested. The contracting parties were Mr. Boyd Wertz, and Miss Mary C. McMurtrie, of that village.

Rev. George Penepacker, of the M. E. church, this place, was the officiating clergyman, and united them in the sacred relation of husband and wife in that solemn and impressive manner that should always characterize the ceremony. After the wedding was appropriately concluded congratulations were feelingly expressed and the party assembled around the festal board, which was laden with the delicacies of a bounteous season to a degree that proved tempting and highly enjoyable to every one present.

The bride, Miss Mary McMurtrie, more familiarly known to her friends as Miss "Molly," is the esteemed daughter of Mr. S. M. McMurtrie. She is a graceful, accomplished young lady, and will fill the new position to which the arch little deity, Cupid, has called her with that dignity which is becoming. The groom, Mr. Wertz, we believe, is an employe of the railroad company.

Numerous beautiful and costly presents were received and admired by the guests. Nor must we omit to mention the lovely appearance of the bride on this eventful evening. It was the subject of general remark. We trust that a life of happiness awaits Mr. and Mrs. Wertz, and in this wish we are seconded by all who know them.

Wanted—A Wife Worth $5,000.

A certain young gentleman of this place engaged in conversation with a commission agent a few days ago. The commission man said it was his object to secure for other people whatever they want for a suitable percentage, and the young man said that what he was in search of is a wife worth $5,000 in her own right. The commission man kindly volunteered his services in that direction and we have learned the facts from him.

Now, girls, the young man who wants a wife is connected with one of the prominent business establishments of this place. The only further explanation we think necessary to give is that the said business establishment is not a printing office. He is young, moral, good-looking and very genial. All he requires is $5,000, and we have no doubt there are plenty of young ladies in Bellefonte who answer that description. Perhaps a rural miss or even one from Lock Haven would be equally acceptable. The young man said we might give his name, but we won't. If any young lady chooses to apply we will refer her to the commission man and he will complete all the necessary arrangements. This is said to be a bona fide arrangement, and if there is a $5,000 young lady among our readers here's a chance for her.

Facts and Fancies.

The car works, with all its machinery, is still there. Why not purchase it and convert it into something useful? For instance, a screw or furniture factory?

Why not develop the resources of Centre county by building railroad lines with home capital and not depend on the assistance of strangers?

J. M. Keichline, Esq., has heard the news from Ohio and will probably spend about $150 in his department during this month. He feels so gleeful over the result that he will treat all his wards to something extra.

It's a fact—no joke about it—that hairpin factory to be started by Mr. Bush. The hairpins will probably be fancy, however. It is proper to state that the process of making hairpins by this method is still in its in-fancy.

Stone to be used in the foundation of the new Catholic church is being hauled from Academy Hill on Water street. Thus part of the stone foundation of what has long been known as the Hill of Science, on the summit of which so many of our intelligent men have received their educations, will be used as a foundation for a temple of worship. In a new way education contributes to the support of religion.

A Beautiful Cornet.

Friday morning we stepped into the jewelry store of our friend, Mr. F. C. Richard, when our eyes rested upon an exquisite solid silver cornet of elaborate design and perfect finish. It was purchased in the city by Mr. Wm. D. Miles, a merchant of Milesburg, and intended for a present to his son, T. A. Miles, a young gentleman of musical skill and who is connected with the band in that place. Mr. Richards will engrave it appropriately when it will be given to the fortunate young man. It is worth over $90, and is not only beautiful in workmanship but is also a very superior instrument.

The Working Force.

At a special meeting of the Board of Managers of the Y. M. C. A., on the evening of October 15, 1883, the different committees to attend to the various departments of Association work were selected. In addition to the usual committees, the Board filled a long-felt want by agreeing upon a committee on music which will be found added to the list which we give below:

Devotional Committee—Q. A. Daniels, Charles F. Cook, James P. Irvin, John A. Rankin.

Committee on Membership—W. I. Fleming, L. A. Shaffer, Frank Shenton, Newton S. Bailey, Harry Keller, J. W. Gephart, D. B. Bell.

The Reformer.

Martin Luther looms up before us at this 400th anniversary of his birth as one of the most notable figures in history. Almost anything in reference to him is interesting at this time.

He was born in Eisleben, Germany, on the 16th of November, 1483. His father was a miner who afterwards accumulated enough money to place him in easy circumstances. Young Martin was a headstrong boy and one day received 15 floggings during a single forenoon session of school. When he was 6 months old his father moved to Mansfield and Martin was sent to school at Madgeburg. Afterwards he attended school at Eisenach, where it seemed he was compelled to earn money by singing on the street. Conrad and Ursula Cotta, very kind people, were good to Martin and aided him very much. Martin pursued his education at the University of Erfurt, and was one of the most intelligent men of his time. He became a monk, but circumstances caused religious truths to make a deep impression on his mind. The question that he tried to solve was: "How shall a man be just with God?" and one day when mounting the La Kala Santa stairway at Rome the thought flashed on memory, "The just shall live by faith." On this doctrine he waged his eventful revolution and perhaps transformed the world to a greater extent than any other one person since his time.

—Under the caption "Joyful Tidings," the Philipsburg Journal informs its readers that for some time there has been little said about the extension of the new Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern railroad to that place, but the prospects are now exceedingly bright, and work on it is liable to be commenced at any moment. Hon. William A. Wallace, President, Hon. S. R. Peale, Director and Solicitor, and Chief Engineer Neering, were in Philipsburg a few days ago, perfecting arrangements. The road is graded to where Bear Run empties into the Moshannon creek, eight miles northwest of Philipsburg. From the point mentioned the line comes up the creek to the town, crossing the T. & C. railroad 350 feet west of the railroad bridge, situated near Hoover, Hughes & Co.'s planing mill, running through the Beaver meadows, where ten acres of ground have been secured for the erection of the passenger and freight depots, sidings, general terminal facilities, and probably repair shops.

Death of a former Resident of Centre County.

Mr. Frank Hoy was one of several brothers who went from this county a number of years ago to the West and have been engaged in herding cattle, which business they pursued quite successfully. Their location is near Evanston, Wyoming Territory. Frank was in delicate health. He accordingly determined, quite recently, to journey East for the purpose of visiting his relatives in this county and to place himself under the care of some eminent physician. The sequel shows that he was unable to carry out his intention.

When he had progressed as far East as Savannah, Illinois, where a sister, Mrs. Chamberlain, resides, he was prostrated and failed rapidly until the 5th of October when the vital spark was extinguished.

The deceased will be kindly remembered by a large number of friends residing near Jacksonville in this county. He was unmarried.

A Church Dedication.

The new M. E. church at Rock was dedicated to the service of God Sunday afternoon. In the morning service was held, Presiding Elder McGarrah delivering the sermon. In the afternoon an eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev. George Penepacker, of this place, which was followed by the dedicatory services. The church, which will accommodate about three hundred, was thronged on each occasion, and about $200 was collected as the result of an appeal for money. The church is entirely free from debt and was dedicated without any of those disagreeable encumbrances known as mortgages resting upon it. No service was held in the evening. Rev. Mr. Mattern had charge of all the services and conducted them with skill.

Two Runaways.

On Thursday afternoon the team of horses driven by Theodore Harper took fright near Crider's mill and ran up Lamb street toward Spring. Before they had gone very far they were caught by Mr. Thomas Benner and another man. No damage was done.

Quite early Friday morning a more destructive runaway occurred. Mr. William Lyon's horse, attached to a buggy, became frightened at some object and ran along Bishop street traveling on the sidewalk. In turning the corner at Allegheny street the buggy came in contact with the building occupied by Miss McBride. Then the horse dashed up the street still on the pavement, the vehicle overturning some goods displayed in front of Lyon's mercantile establishment. Here it also struck a post and the animal was caught. The buggy was badly wrecked.

—Rev. Crittenden officiated in a very acceptable and entertaining manner in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning. He exhibited a map of Centre, Clearfield, Lycoming, Clinton, Cameron and Elk counties to to the congregation, showing the field through which his labors extend, on which the churches in prosperous condition were represented by gold leaf. Two of these shining points located in the southern part of Bradford county represent where his labors as a missionary began. Without a word of encouragement from the people of that section, he founded two Sunday schools and both are now self sustaining churches, one of them having over one hundred members. Then he spoke of DuBois City, where a few years ago he founded the first Sunday school and where there are now three churches and four Sunday schools. His sermon, which followed these remarks, was appropriate to the occasion and quite instructive. We know of no one who is doing better work for the Master than Rev. Crittenden.

—The fourteenth anniversary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the Methodist church next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. That it will be interesting is assured as the anniversary meetings of the Association are looked forward to eagerly by all church attendants, and many who do not attend church at other times. It will be a union meeting, the other churches being closed during the hour of their usual evening service.

—Mr. A. G. Curtin, Jr's., residence on Curtin street certainly presents a very conspicuous appearance from all portions of the town. It is not very large but will be excellently arranged and quite unique in style. We hope that others who purpose erecting dwelling houses will follow the example of Mr. C., in modeling after some other styles of architecture than that now so prevalent in Bellefonte, thus affording agreeable relief to the eye.

—The Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania met last week in Pittsburg. It comprises 855 ministers, 931 churches and 133,660 members. At its present meeting it will discuss the advisability of separating into two, or perhaps three, distinct synods. On Wednesday evening Dr. W. P. Breed, of Philadelphia, was elected moderator, Dr. Wilson, the former moderator, having died during the year.

—Senator Peale, of Lock Haven, has been interviewed by a newspaper reporter regarding his recent visit to Europe. On the first day out he saw a whale and on the eighth day he beheld Erin's Isle. He spent most of his time in Ireland, which he considers a beautiful country, but thinks that her people are governed very poorly by the English.

—This is the season when the "grateful warmth" emanates from the warmthful grate.
